

DION MAZEROLLE BARITONE

REVIEWS

In Falstaff with Opera in Concert –

“Singing the lead in Opera in Concert’s appealing, good-natured production, baritone Dion Mazerolle brought great wit and charm to the proceedings, the breadth of his warm, attractive instrument exceeded only by a hefty layer of body padding.”

Ian Ritchie, Opera Going Toronto

In Messiah with Lameque Baroque Festival –

“But the grand prize among the soloists belonged without doubt to Acadian bass baritone Dion Mazerolle. Never have we heard such fine singing. Expansive with his smooth voice, assured, and at once both thunderous and nuanced. This [bass] baritone has no need to envy Ildebrando D’Archangelo, Mariusz Kwiecien and the other excellent baritones of the world, as he is now taking his place among the greats.”

Martin Roy, Acadie Nouvelle

In Louise with Opera in Concert –

“...vocally resonant and assertive, dramatically commanding. His character’s starkly defined passage from contentment and resignation to spite, rage and savagery over the course of two utterly detached acts required supreme concentration and nimble artistic instincts. Mazerolle astonished, setting Act IV ablaze with fury, then quickly extinguishing the flames, abruptly segueing to the stillness and quietude of Reste... repose-toi (“Stay here... stay and rest”). Time froze. Mazerolle mesmerized.”

OperaGoTo.com

“Dion Mazerolle showed off his wonderful top notes in his dramatic scenes after the interval.”

Leslie Barcza, BarczaBlog.com

As Père Felicien in Evangeline with L’Opera-Theatre de Rimouski –

“Dion Mazerolle’s rich, dignified voice, combined with his intelligent stagecraft brought true depth to the role of Père Felicien.”

Simon Rivard, L’Opera - Revue quebecoise d’art lyrique

As The Fool in Le Reve de Gregoire with Chants Libres, Montreal –

“...Dion Mazerolle portrays the character of The Fool with undeniable mastery...”

Lucie Renaud, Jeu (Quebec)

As Sir Robert Cecil in Gloriana with Voicebox:Opera in Concert –

“Sir Robert Cecil is sung by Dion Mazerolle, a fine, resonant baritone, his voice an iron fist in a velvet glove”

OperaGoTo.com

As Don Alfonso in Cosi fan Tutte with Opera York –

“Dion Mazerolle as Don Alfonso, was the vocal star of the evening, showing delicate pianissimos in the famous trio, articulating his words flawlessly, and lending a genuine sense of maturity to the proceedings.”

REVIEWS (CONTINUED)

In And the Rat Laughed with Opera York –

“A local Catholic priest, sung by baritone Dion Mazerolle in a powerful performance, eventually saves her.”

Joseph So, Opera Canada

As Golaud in Pelléas et Mélisande with Opera de Montreal –

“But the real star was Dion Mazerolle in his compelling portrayal of Golaud, whose personality changes were vibrantly characterized with insight and sensitivity, from the tenderly caring hunter of Act I to the abusive, half-crazed husband of Act IV to the remorseful widower at the end.”

Robert Markow

“La supplique d'Énée, par le baryton Dion Mazerolle, a remporté des salves d'applaudissements.”

François Cavallès

As Ferdinand in The Tempest with Pacific Opera Victoria –

“Frédérique Vézina as Miranda, together with Dion Mazerolle as Ferdinand were disarmingly sweet as the young lovers, especially given the fact that I saw it on Valentine's Day. Both had strong, supple voices that blended gorgeously.”

Robert Mitchell, CBC

As Figaro in Il Barbiere di Siviglia with Opera York –

“Dion Mazerolle as Figaro was simply delightful. The melodies and text just rolled off the tongue with an incredible ease, and the gestures all were so genuine. He even could play the guitar for real! He simply was Figaro!”

Gabriele Schick, Echo germanica

“Heading the cast was Montreal baritone Dion Mazerolle as Figaro, a role he had previously sung in Germany. The best among the principals, Mazerolle acted with panache and sang quite well...”

Joseph So, Opera Canada

As Schaunard in La Bohème with Opera Ontario –

“Dion Mazerolle's light, firm baritone makes a memorable character of the easy-going Schaunard.”
